Negotiating Space For Gender Studies

Pardah or purdah (from Persian: پرده , meaning "curtain") is a religious and social practice of female seclusion prevalent among some Muslim and Hindu communities in South Asia. It takes two forms: physical segregation of the sexes and the requirement that women cover their bodies so as to cover their skin and conceal their form.

Gender is the range of characteristics pertaining to, and differentiating between, masculinity and femininity. Depending on the context, these characteristics may include biological sex (i.e., the state of being male, female, or an intersex variation), sex-based social structures (i.e., gender roles), or gender identity. Many if not most societies use a gender binary, having two genders, men ...

We write in response to the controversy surrounding the 800 m women's world running champion, Caster Semenya and the flurry of articles surrounding this sad saga. Some of those championing Caster's cause accuse those wanting to sex-test Caster of imperialism and racism (as well as sexism). Others plead for the us to wait before 'reaching a verdict' arguing that the realities of sex ...
